Essential Voiceover Training

5 Essential Fundamentals to kick-off your Voiceover career

#1 - Are you READY to be a voiceover artist?

Many people may think that it's a simple thing to become a voice actor or artist. That you can just buy a mic and suddenly the whole world will fall in love with your wonderful voice...

(tire screech, record scratch, crickets...)

Whoa there! Hang on a minute! Now I can definitely teach you what you need to know to start up a kick ass VO career, but it takes some work!

Check out this info below:

- It's not necessarily easy!
- Takes a LOT of hard work and dedication
- Have to be willing to challenge yourself, accept training, seek out new knowledge
- Must be willing and able to INVEST in yourself and your career
- Must be willing to STICK WITH IT

#2 – The basics of equipment

Part of the investment you will need to make in yourself and your career is in EQUIPMENT.

No, your kids gaming headset with attached microphone is NOT going to work for voiceover.

Here's a bit of what you will need:

- Quality condenser Microphone
- Quality digital interface/preamp
- Digital Audio Workstation (DAW)
- A recording space (booth)
- A willingness to become an EXPERT at all this

#3 – A DECISION as to what TYPE of voice actor you want to be.

This may seem odd but trust me... if you want to start strong in launching a kick ass career, you really need to think about this stuff up front.

That's not to say you can't change your direction later, but a BEST PRACTICE would be to have this figured out in advance so you don't confuse a whole bunch of people... namely your CLIENTS.

For your critical thinking:

- Union? Or Self-Affiliated?
- Agent/Management? Or Self-Represented?
- Subscription Sites? e.g. Voices.com, Voice123.com
- Freelance only? Self-Marketing?
- Good news - There are hybrid alternatives!

#4 – Present, Perform, Produce

A HUGE required part of being a voice actor today is the fundamental essential of being able to self present, perform, and produce. This means in almost everything.

Sure, later you can outsource stuff. But right now?

Don't scrimp on the equipment (mentioned above) just so you can pay for this stuff. You can do ALL this!

Required ESSENTIAL skills you will need:

- Website (your store front)
- Demo (your calling card and probably the ONLY thing you should NOT DIY at first)
- How to FIND work
- How to record, edit, produce, etc. etc. audio
- Believe it or not you CAN learn ALL of this stuff!

#5 – The proper mindset

So I've mentioned a few times you have to be willing, and to challenge yourself. To be able to do this and start a kick ass voiceover career requires the ESSENTIAL MINDSET of a WINNER.

If you really want to achieve success and be kick ass yourself at voiceover, you have to put your head in the game. Realize this IS a business. Approach everything you do with intention and throw out all the things that would slow you down.

What is the mindset of a WINNER?:

- Hard work is REQUIRED
- Patience is not just a virtue, it's ESSENTIAL to success
- Continuous improvement
- Investing in yourself and your career
- And NEVER stop!
- Malcom Gladwell says it takes 10K hours to expertise
 - Start now! Invest in yourself today so you don't look back in a year and say “Aww, man! Why didn't I do it then?”
